

IRWG—WOMEN'S STUDIES MLK SYMPOSIUM PERFORMANCE

Pouring Tea

E. Patrick Johnson

TUESDAY, JANUARY 22, 2013

7:00 PM

Space 2435, North Quad

This event is free and open to the public.

E. Patrick Johnson stars in this one-man exploration into the southern black gay community. The performance is based on Johnson's award-winning book, Sweet Tea. An oral history inspired by the author's personal journey, the book examines the perceptions, angst, triumphs and vulnerabilities of this minority within a minority.

E. Patrick Johnson, the Carlos Montezuma Professor of Performance Studies and African American Studies at the Northwestern University School of Communications, has published widely in the areas of race, class and gender, and performance.

WOMEN'S STUDIES
40 YEARS

UNDER STANDING
RACE
PROJECT.ORG

INSTITUTE FOR RESEARCH ON Women & Gender

Lane Hall
204 S. State Street
Ann Arbor, MI 48109
(734) 764-9537
irwg.research.umich.edu

Cosponsors: Understanding Race Theme Semester;
American Culture; Stamps School of Art & Design;
DAAS; IRWG LGQRI; IRWG African Diaspora Sexualities
Program; Center for World Performance Studies;
North Quad; Institute for the Humanities